

GRAND RAPIDS, JAN. 22, 1885.

MINOR MICHIGAN MATTERS.

The Flat river log product is estimated at 55,000,000 feet.

Hon. Almon Mack died at Rochester January 21, at the age of 84.

West Bay City Episcopalians will soon build a house of worship.

The estimated log product of the Au Sable this winter is 120,000,000 feet.

The log out of Pere Marquette river will be about sixty per cent. of that of last year.

A resident of Jackson reports the thermometer at 25° below zero Tuesday morning.

It was 23° below zero at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning in the High School building at Kalamazoo.

The prospects are that M. C. T. Miller, of East Saginaw, will start a new drug-store in South Bay City.

Isphing schools are still closed on account of diphtheria, and the date of opening is set at January 26.

Lake Michigan at Charlevoix is covered with ice and the thermometer is hovering around pretty low figures.

Mr. Babcock, of Bronson, who took poison by mistake, is recovering and will probably live to exercise more caution in the future.

The Mayor of Muskegon has granted the street railway temporary permission to run sleighs instead of cars along the main streets.

Dr. Kedzie finds the water of Michigan's sawdust cities so full of organic matter as to be absolutely unfit for drinking and culinary purposes.

The very severe weather does not interfere with the revival-meetings at Jackson. The singing of Mr. and Mrs. McGinnis is a great attraction.

The following officers of the First National Bank of Ovid have been elected: President, Robert M. Steel; Vice-President, E. D. Camp; Cashier, H. N. Keys.

Chas. W. Howard, of Breedsview, has been sentenced to Jackson for two years and six months for procuring a barn burned to defraud an insurance company.

Reports to the Michigan Board of Health show neuralgia, rheumatism, tonsillitis and bronchitis diseases in order named as causing most sickness in Michigan.

It is understood that Saginaw City has contracted with a Buffalo firm for 1,700 tons of eight, ten and twelve-inch iron pipe for the extension of the water mains next spring.

The sixth annual meeting of the Michigan Engineering Society will be held in Lansing, commencing Tuesday, February 17, and continuing until the evening of the 19th.

The first annual meeting of the new Livingston County Agricultural and Horticultural Society is advertised by Secretary F. W. Munson, to be held at Howell on Thursday, January 23, next.

Kalamazoo came near having a disastrous fire on Monday night. The wood-shed of a residence was on fire, the flames lighting up the air for some distance, but a few pails of water extinguished them.

The skating-rinks at Muskegon are formidable rivals to the union prayer-meetings. Three congregations cannot get as large an assembly at their prayer-meetings as the skating-rink can muster every night.

Two heretics, three double carriages, and one hack all play between Central and North Lansing. There is no need of members of the Legislature walking over to see their North Lansing girls if they can muster a nickel.

In the Van Buren County Circuit Court, Tuesday morning, Judge Mills sentenced Wm. Lafferty, of Breedsview, this county, to Jackson for five years for burglary, and his pal, John Hurly, for four years and six months.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fischer, of Kalamazoo, was found dead in bed Tuesday night with appearance of suicide, but her husband was arrested on account of suspicious circumstances. He served one term for beating a former wife.

Mr. S. A. Brown, the Kalamazoo horseman, who is well-known in Grand Rapids, has been awarded three prizes out of five offered for best stallion roadsters at the New Orleans exposition. Grand Sentinel winning first, Indicator third, and Empire fourth.

The propeller Michigan, of the Grand Trunk Line, is ice-bound outside of the Grand Haven harbor near the north pier. She arrived from Milwaukee Tuesday morning in the midst of a fierce snow-storm, which still continues unabated, accompanied by snow and cold.

Will F. Lunge, a saloon-keeper of Saginaw City, shot himself through the head Tuesday morning, the ball entering the back of the right ear and taking an upward course. The wound is probably fatal. He had been a member of the police force until a year or so ago. He says he was discouraged.

Frank Owens, of Danville, was drowned in Nebraska not long ago and left a wife and three children. Within a week of those who have died of diphtheria. A third is past hope and the mother—a childless widow—is now down with the dread disease. The Board of Health has closed the schools.

Charles Nugent and Harry Armstrong, who pleaded guilty to having entered the residence of L. H. Leavenworth, of Saginaw City, a few weeks ago and stealing $500 worth of goods, were sentenced Tuesday evening, Nugent getting two years and Armstrong twenty-two months in State Prison.

The bill of T. I. Daniel, Circuit Court stenographer, for $574.40, was rejected Monday evening by the Board of Supervisors, of Jackson County. They decided that his salary of $1,800 covered his expenses. But Mr. Daniel had been obliged to employ two skilled stenographers during the Holcomb trial, besides one at Lansing, and he may contest this decision of the Board.

The new Congregational Church at Charlevoix was dedicated Sunday, the 18th, the services being conducted by Rev. E. E. Fairfield, of Manistee. A balance of about $500 was pledged by the congregation, leaving the society free from debt. The building and lot has cost $5,500, which has all been raised through the labors of the pastor, Rev. C. F. Van Alton, in less than two years. In the evening Dr. Fairfield gave an interesting lecture, descriptive of a trip through Palestine some years ago.

The Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of the State of Michigan met at Masonic Temple, Detroit, Tuesday, and elected the following officers: Grand Master, Geo. W. Stephenson, St. Johns; Deputy Grand Master, Alfred B. Bailey, St. Joseph; Principal Conductor of Work, Alfred S. Bailey, Detroit; Treasurer, H. Shaw, Noble, Manistee; Recorder, Garza B. Noble, Detroit; Captain of the Guard, Allan McKee, Manistee; Conductor of Convention, Thomas G. Greene, Three Rivers; Chaplain, Francis A. Biales, Detroit; Steward, Sanford Hunt, Jackson; Sentinel, Alexander McGregor, Detroit.

The new asylum at Traverse City, is said to be located in case of fire, the little could be done to save it from destruction.

There is an expense of six great buildings and possibly a seventh liable to destruction should a fire originate within the edifice and there are no water-works in the village. The State House of Correction, at Ionia, the State Public School at Calhoun, are not much better protected. The School for the Blind at Lansing and the Reform School for Boys are remote from a sufficient water supply. The citizens of Lansing are to vote upon the question of building water-works in a day or two. The opinion of members of the Legislature is that no State institution should be located in a place that has not an abundant water supply, with a good head of water and an adequate fire department.

LIVINGSTON'S CIRCUS.

A Rich and Eccentric New York-er's Strange Performances.

Driving Through the Streets With Twenty-Four in Hand—A Passion Which Has Taken Complete Possession of Our Ancient American Jehu.

[Florence Cor. Louisville Courier-Journal.]

Standing in front of the hotel Washington one day soon after my arrival in this city, I saw a strange sight coming. A rather oldish, but well-preserved looking man sat upon the high fore-seat of an open vehicle driving six horses—a pair next the wheels and four tandem. Behind were two vehicles, each drawn by six horses, with coachmen and footmen in livery. The coachmen were dressed in the regulation English costume, but the footmen wore green and black short coats, with caps to match, and cream-colored trousers. The old man in front, with his plug hat and peculiar face, handled the reins with skill and spoke occasionally to his gayly trapped and bobbed steeds. His mind seemed to be set upon his work. I said to the porter of the hotel: "What is that? Is it a circus?"

The Italian, who spoke English very well, smiled and said: "It is Mr. Livingston, an American."

Of course I concluded that Mr. Livingston was some vulgarian who had suddenly struck oil. I found out his full history soon afterward, and imagine my amazement when I was told that he was one of the distinguished Livingston family of New York and a man of brilliant education, speaking several languages fluently. But he is a crank, all the same, and a good coachman.

It appears that he has been living in Florence twenty or thirty years, and he has kept up this hippodrome or street procession all these years. Horses are his hobby, and he spends nearly all his surplus money on them. They cost him, twenty-four head, about $10,000 a year. They soon eat their heads off, and the sums the old crank has squandered in this way is a shame. He is now sixty-seven years of age, and old enough to know better. His horses are splendidly groomed and quartered, and give him no trouble, and he makes an annual contract with the head coachman, who relieves him of all responsibility. On himself he does not spend a thousand dollars a year. He takes his meals at a cheap cafe and takes his seat in the pit at the theatre.

Formerly he drove as many as twenty-four horses in hand himself. He always drives himself and sometimes his "leaders" would be far around a corner and out of sight before the vehicle got into the turn. He had a runaway picnic a few years ago and was thrown from his perch and his arm broken. This did not deter him, however, and it was not long before his string of steeds took fright again and dashed through the streets of Florence, scattering consternation and destruction as they went. A cab was utterly demolished and the driver so badly bruised that he afterwards died at the hospital. The authorities stepped in at this stage of the game and informed Mr. Livingston that henceforth he should not drive more than six horses in hand through the streets. The old man was nearly heart-broken because his pet luxury had been so fearfully curtailed, but the officials were firm and six horses are all he can now handle. But he will have his stable out and has always from twelve to sixteen head following his coach. This passion or craze seems to have taken complete possession of the old Jehu.

A few years ago he lost his wife, and shortly afterward married a beautiful Italian woman with rather a soiled reputation. It was not long before the young bride ran off with her step-son, a youth hardly grown, but the old man kept on driving his horses. After a round at Paris and about the guilty couple returned, and the old man has so far forgiven his beautiful bride as to settle an annual sum for her benefit! Now one of his sons is lying at the hospital at death's door, but the old man drives his horses just the same. Nothing short of Gabriel's silver trumpet would stop his prancing steeds.

A Queer Complication.

[Washington Special to Cincinnati Enquirer.]

I hear a strange outcome touching the Paxton-Willard elopement case. The young lady, it will be remembered, was engaged to a distinguished son of New Jersey, and the cards were out and a number of presents already sent. The father of Miss Willard was on his way from Europe to bless the union. Mountaine Mr. Paxton and Miss Willard were quietly married, leaving the New Jersey suitor in the lurch. When the father of Miss Willard reached this city and was made acquainted with the change of the young lady's mind he caused to be returned to the donors the wedding presents which had been sent to his daughter in anticipation of her marrying the other fellow. Now comes Paxton, however, and threatens to sue his father-in-law for their value, both for himself and wife, taking the ground that the presents belonged to Miss Willard, now Mrs. Paxton, and to no one else.

Like a Bird in a Cage.

[Newport Cor. Boston Transcript.]

A little Newport child of rich parentage, carefully nursed and richly clothed and guarded tenderly by its elders, was driving by the Orphans' Home the other day when it caught the sound of the many childish voices in the yard where the children were at play. It eagerly asked: "Oh, mamma, what is that?" "They are poor little orphans, without any parents," impressively answered the mother, hugging her darling closer. "Oh, mamma," exclaimed the child, crossing his little hands over his velvet gown and drawing a deep sigh, "how I wish I was a poor little orphan!" The mother appreciated the situation, and has since given her child companionship of its own stable and a little more freedom from fine clothes and constant nursing.

Not Upon a Safe Footing.

[New York Journal.]

It is the custom in some countries, particularly in bonnie Scotland, for the young bucks, when the clock strikes twelve the last night of the year, to call upon their lady-loves with a bottle in one hand and a glass in the other. This is called "first footing." The custom has not been adopted in this country. First footing in such cases is generally performed by the old man.

A BROKEN HEART.

Effect of a Blow Upon a High-Spirited Southern Girl. [Chattanooga Times.]

News has reached this city of a sensation in our sister city, Knoxville, the facts of which have been suppressed by the local press. A few months ago a wealthy gentleman of that city discovered that one of his employees was paying court to his daughter. The young man was an accomplished scholar, possessing high literary attainments and superior in every regard, but unfortunately was very poor. The stern father, when he made the discovery, forbade the young man his house and prohibited his daughter from ever seeing him again. The love that had been kindled was not to be so easily stifled, and the couple succeeded in holding several clandestine meetings. The father, shrewd in his hard-heartedness, discovered the couple together, and losing his temper, discharged the young man from his employ on the spot, and in the excitement of the moment struck his daughter for disobeying him. The blow was light, but left its mark, and the young lady from that moment began to droop; the imprint on her burning cheek seemed to have been engraved in her heart, and that act of her impetuous father was his fatal mistake. The young man was forced to leave Knoxville to seek employment elsewhere. The tender heart of the fragile girl was broken and a few days ago she died, breathing the name of her lover in her last moments. The first he heard of her sickness was the news of her death, and leaving all else he reached Knoxville in time to participate in the sad obsequies and wet the mound above her grave with burning tears, such as follow poignant grief and well from broken hearts.

A PETRIFIED GIRL.

The Ohio Girl Whom Rheumatism Turned to Stone. [Cincinnati Commercial.]

A young lady living in the vicinity of North East, named Lizzie Patterson, has been released from a life of suffering, which for fifteen years had not an alleviating circumstance. When a girl at the age of ten she was stricken with rheumatism. A season of treatment at the hands of the most skilled physicians failed to relieve the sufferer. At the age of fifteen her muscles became so rigid that the power of locomotion was entirely destroyed. Since then she was confined to her bed and was unable to do herself the slightest service. Five years ago the muscles became so hard that the joints of the lower limbs could not work. The fibrous tissues of the arms and hands were next affected, so that they were entirely useless, and soon, like the lower limbs, bore no semblance to the human anatomy. A year ago the muscles controlling the head and neck were contorted so as to draw the head out of shape. The muscle in the face then hardened and closed the lower jaw so tight that the teeth had to be removed in order to make an aperture through which food could be introduced. To give the patient even a moderate amount of food required three hours work, during which the effort at swallowing caused excruciating pain. Vomiting and suffocation finally caused death. Miss Patterson was twenty years of age, and at the time of her death was actually petrified with disease. The case is exciting great interest in the medical profession.

Read What Van's Magic Oil or King of Pain Has Done for the People.

We have used Van's Magic Oil for internal and external applications, in cases of Colic, Cuts, Burns, Bruises, etc., and find none better. It is especially adapted to children, as it can be used with safety and satisfaction, and we earnestly recommend it to parents.

Muskegon, Sept. 23, 1884.

J. W. EDDY.

I have used Van's Magic Oil for Neuralgia, and it has proved to be satisfactory, as it has cured me entirely; also our next door neighbor was cured by it. I would advise a doctor, but the doctor asked for four more of his profession, and consulted. If the child would be alive in the evening they were to open the child's throat and cut the phlegm out. This I did not approve of, but as there was no hope of the child's recovery, I consented. Finally our neighbor, Mrs. F. Vanderwey, called with a bottle of your Magic Oil, and asked if we would use it—it would cost us nothing. We used the child three or five drops internally every hour, and put a little on the side of the foot with onion, and bathed the throat with Magic Oil, and when the doctor came in the evening he wanted to know what we had given the child, as it breathed so much easier. I told him we used Van's Magic Oil. He said keep right on using it, as that was better than he could do. I have thanked Mrs. Vanderwey a thousand times for her kindness, and I earnestly thank you for your valuable medicine. Yours truly,

MRS. A. D. PAIN.

Van's Magic Oil or King of Pain is manufactured by N. A. Vanderwey, Muskegon, Mich., and is sold by all dealers.
